Rosenquist Wins Policyholder Service Excellence Award, Chooses American Cancer Society as Charity

FOND DU LAC, Wis. (March 20, 2018) — Paul Rosenquist was recently awarded the Society Insurance Policyholder Service Excellence Award in a brief ceremony at Society's Annual Policyholder Meeting in Fond du Lac.

As part of the award, Society donated $250 to the American Cancer Society in Rosenquist's name.

Rosenquist, a security architect on the information technology team, meets the difficult challenge of securing Society's information systems and data from the threats present in today's business environment. Because Society works hand in hand with its policyholders and independent agents, Rosenquist is charged with protecting their data as well.

Rosenquist has become a critical resource for security and data-integrity issues. He is known for responding immediately to concerns with a serious approach, and working relentlessly to address the concern and communicate his findings. "I am proud to have Paul in Society's corner," said the employee who nominated Rosenquist for this award. "I can breathe a little easier knowing that he's on the job, protecting the security of our systems — and helping agents and policyholders in the process."
