FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Society Insurance Presented Well Workplace Award by Wellness Council of America

FOND DU LAC, Wis. (October 11, 2018)— The Wellness Council of America (WELCOA), with local affiliate Wellness Council of Wisconsin (WCWI), recently presented its Gold Well Workplace Award to Society Insurance. This award recognizes Society for its commitment to the health and well-being of employees.

Since the award's inception in 1991, more than 1,000 organizations have joined the list of "America's Healthiest Companies" by earning the Well Workplace Award. "By meeting the comprehensive standards necessary to achieve the Gold Well Workplace Award, Society is prioritizing employee well-being as a foundation of company culture," said Wellness Council of Wisconsin executive director Marissa Kalkman.

"I knew we could do it based on our strategic approach to wellness, a strong employee wellness committee, support from our senior executives and, of course, having such great employees who are interested in and dedicated to wellness," said Krista Arnhoelter, human resources manager at Society. Arnhoelter noted that feedback from annual wellness surveys and aggregate data from employee health risk assessments inform and drive the company's unique wellness initiatives.

The Wellness Council of Wisconsin was founded in 1985 by nine employers from the Wisconsin business community. With more than 6,000 member organizations located throughout North America, the Wellness Council of America is recognized for its innovative, result-oriented approach to worksite wellness.
